

Bank House

9th January 1897

My Dear Unwin

I am still confined to my room though somewhat better than I was. I hope to see you before very long in London anyway in March. I am sorry there is nothing to offer you for some time. Watt has made his arrangements some considerable way ahead and people who pay large sums for serial rights now almost invariably think they have a claim for the book rights as well.

However I shall see that you are neither overlooked nor mislipped with kind regards

faithfully yours

SR Crockett.