My Dear Major,

I am delighted to hear what you say about Mark Twain. We shall try to meet when I am next in London. The pen goes upon its way rejoicing. It was indeed good of you to give me such an old friend and I shall endeavour to use it well. I am still going round the links twice a day and wish very much you were here to Kodak us as you did upon your all too short visit. When you are settled back in America, my wife and I want to know your address, in order to send you some souvenirs and photographs which will keep you from forgetting.

My Dear Major,

Your sincere friend
S.R.Crockett

We hope you will go back to the States thinking we are the nicest people over here. For (I give it to you first hand) we are, you know.
